Here's a selection of articles I've written for newspapers and magazines. I'm always happy to consider new commissions - please email me at polly@pollyevans.com.

Recent articles Following in the footsteps of a trailblazer...but not on a camel May 5, 2010
Independent on Sunday, 18 April 2010. It was 150 years ago that John Stuart reached a part of Australia that other colonialists had failed to reach. Polly Evans retraced his journey, only with a few more home comforts
If you go down to the woods... Jul 12, 2009 Sunday Times Travel, May 2009 ...You don't want to end up as bear bait. Polly Evans contemplates the Yukon wilderness from a canoe – and finds distance lends enchantment.

To find Alaska's wildlife, follow the pipeline Apr 26, 2009 Independent on Sunday, 26 April 2009. The oil industry is providing an unlikely aid to tourism in this US state. Polly Evans takes the Dalton Highway into the heart of the wilderness

First Time In...Dublin Mar 20, 2009 Voyager, February 2009. It must be something they put in the Guinness: Dublin has bred more than its fair share of pen-wielding, string-strumming, hell-raising geniuses...

On top of the world Feb 7, 2009 Condé Nast Traveller, March 2009. And now for something completely different: how about a high-latitude escape for spring?

Into the Yukon's Kluane National Park Feb 2, 2009 www.GreatOutdoors.com, February 2009. The three of us stood stripped to our underwear and contemplated the rushing glacial stream. The water came to hip height—if we wanted to stay dry we'd have to undress still further—but wordlessly we agreed to cling to this one last vestige of propriety. And then, backpack waist straps unclipped in case of calamity and using each other's bodies for support, we inched our way through the numbing torrents...

Mad Dogs and an Englishwoman Feb 2, 2009 GreatOutdoors.com, February 2009. I've never been good with the cold, so it was with some nervousness that I set off for three months in Canada's Yukon Territory, where winter temperatures drop to forty below and the sun rises for just a few hours each day. My mission was to learn to drive sled dogs...

Northern Exposure Jan 6, 2009 Traveller, winter 2008/09. It wasn't my idea to go to the Arctic. I've never been good with the cold....

Plains, reins and snowmobiles Jan 1, 2009 BBC Wildlife, December 2008. Being sent to Siberia was once the ultimate punishment but now the region offers some exhilarating wildlife encounters. Polly Evans braved snowstorms and biting cold to join Chukotka's traditional reindeer races.

Herd reindeer in Chukotka, Siberia Nov 26, 2008 Wanderlust, December 2008. History has been hard on Chukotka. The most north-easterly region of Siberia, it's considered so desperately remote and backward that when Russians tell 'idiot' jokes, it's the Chukchi who take the flak...
